EXPLORING DEATH VALLEY.

From late reports it is stated that the Government scientific expedition has begun operations in exploring Death Valley. The explorers have divided into two parties, one with Bennett's springs on the west side for a starting point, going southward and around and up the east side, and will meet the other party at Furnace creek on the east side, after its return from Ash Meadows and the Armagossa.

They will probably have a very pleasant jaunt of it, as the weather is delightful down there at this season.

Topeka, Jan. 26. - The Alliance forces hold their caucus to-night for the purpose of naming some one from their number who can harmonize the discordant elements in their party. If such a one is found the first engage ment will occur on Tuesday. Ingails will then be elected by the Senate; there being in that body 38 Ingalls men one Democrat and one Alliance man. If the Alliance men stick to their caucus man they will have 93 votes in the House, to 24 Republican and 8 Democratic ballots. Then on Wednesday will come the joint session when all will depend upon the agility of the Alliance to keep their forces together. If they succeed in this session it may end before nightfall.

The Ingalls men are relying on the old soldier element in the Alliance throwing themselves on the side of Ingalls, when he shall march into the House from the Senate chamber. Some knowing ones are sure that no caucus action on earth can prevent

The Ticker will cut off the pensions of old soldiers. This is having an influence momentarily at least.

The Alliance is preserving the strictest secrecy, holding their meetings in dark rooms, and it is difficult to get anything out of them unless you have the Alliance birthmark, Alliance grip or pass-word. From appearances it would seem that Willetts is the most promising one among their number for the Senatorship, but they will not talk about him. Harris still go by train to New Haven. Not of Leavenworth is doubtless the ablest man of the Alliance, and represents every principle combination, but he is an ex-Confederate, and it is doubtful if the large soldier contingent would support him for that reason Congressman Simpson is ruled out from the contest by the Alliance resolution that no member-elect to Congress shall be eligible to the United States Senate.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.-A special from Washington says: Senator Gorman have been watching the Senatorial trouble in Kansas. It has been known for some time that certain Democratic members of the Kansas Legislature were ready to vote for Senator Ingalls on the instructions of the Democratic National Committee, which is generally understood to be represented by Mr. Gorman. The statement made by that gentleman this morning is intrepreted that having placed himself on record against the closure rule and the Federal Elections law, instructions have been issued to the Kansas Democratic legislators to fall in line for Ingalls against the Alliance combination. TOPEKA, (Kansas), Jan. 26.-A mass meeting was held Saturday night in the interest of lngalls' reelection. Several prominent Kansans spoke in favor of Ingalls' re-election, as did also Colonel Livingston, president of the New York State Farmers' Alliance, who denounced the Kansan alliance as being dominated by the Southern branch of the organization, which he said hoped to gain control of the National Government and repeal all pension legislation.

When Ingalls came to the platform he was given an ovation. In his speech he said:

"Whether I am defeated or elected whenever they may be assailed-no matter in what form, no matter who their adversary-I shall respond to the challenge of insolent opposition to the Grand Army of the Republic. Should I go down I shall see there is not a maimed or crappled soldier who shall not feel he has lost a defender."

O'CLOCK EDITION. Hints to the Legislature. The GAZETTE some time ago commenced sending out a circular letter to the members of the Legislature and the people generally. with a view of ascertaining what. He Is Deaf and Dumb, But Is Able to in their indoment were the best in their judgment, were the best laws for the Legislature to pass. The GAZETTE's object was, first, to find out just what the people quirements, and second, to see just how much intelligent thought had been given to the subject of economic reform. Many have responded to the request and given us their idea of what is needed. The answers received would indicate that the people have a great big growl at the burden of taxation that they are laboring under, but have never given the subject of reform attention enough to know where to commence to curtail. The majority of answers received would indicate that they were willing to intrust the whole business to the keeping of a Constitutional Convention, and would look to that body for a solution of the problem, and demanding bothing of the present Legislature. Whether it is from the knowledge that past Legislatures have done their burdens and that they have lost confidence in their representatives doing anything, or whether they think the Legislature is powerless to act, the GAZETTE is unable to say, but if one can judge from the answers received, it would seem that they do not really know what they want. That the present Legislature has it in its power to accomplish nearly all that the people demand cannot be gainsaid; namely, a very material reduction in the expenses of our State and county governments, and a remodeling of the old hackneyed way of levying assessments and adopting some system by which something near a just valuation would be put on all classes of property, thereby making our tax levy less on the one hundred dollars, and which would do more to invite outside capital to invest within our borders than anything else that we could do. If the Legislature is not going to do this, 'hen the sooner we have a Constitutional Convention the better, and we would suggest that after formally electing the ilon. John. P. Jones United States Senator and selecting a Warden for the Penitentiary, they proceed to cauvass the vote on the question and proceed immediately to the passage of a law calling a Convention, making arrangements for the selection of delegates and then adjourn subject to the call of the Governor. In the meantime a new organic law can be framed and submitted to the people, and, if ratified by them, the Governor can call a special session, and they can pass such laws as are deemed necessary under the new condition of things. On the other hand, if the members are truly in earnest, then something in line with the GAZETTE'S suggestion editorially made on January 6, we think would meet

Commence with the Legislature and limit the session to forty days. Make a new apportionment, and reduce the Senate to fourteen twenty-four. Fix the per diem of member at five dollars, and mileage to cover only actual traveling expenses both ways. Limit the number of officers and attaches and fix their per diem on a scale grad- ery of our day. uated to the service rendered at prices paid for clerical labor in the State Capitol and at the prison and make a limited appropriation to pay for two months' clerk hire annually in the preparation of reports in the offices of Controller, Treasurer and Land Register.

Extracts from the suggestions are

herewith reproduced:

Dispense with the private secretary of the Governor, and require the Secretary of State to keep the and Prison Commissioners. Require the Lieutenant-Governor to perform the duties of State Librarian. Dispense with the Curator of the Museum and the salary of the Board of Directors of the Orphans' Home. Limit the force of clerks in the State Land Office to actual needs under the oath of the Land Register, and fix the compensation. Stop the boot and shoe manufactory at the State Prison. Reduce the appropriation for the expenses of the Fish Commissioner and also the State Printing Office. Fix the amount for the household expenses of the Superintendent of the Insane Asylum and the Warden of the State Prison and the Superintendent of Orphans Home. Then scale down the salaries of all constitutional offices to take effect at the close of the terms of the present incumbents.

This would save the State about $45,000 per annum, and not cripple the service in the least.

AN INTELLIGENT ROOSTER.

A gentleman living on the outskirts of the city, near Black Rock, owns a curiosity the like of which Barnum never dreamed of, says the Buffalo thought would best meet their re-quirements, and second, to see just rooster — a full-grown, brilliantly plumed, brown Leghorn chanticleer — that has lost his voice, can neither crow nor cluck, nor make any other audible sound with his vocal apparatus; does not wake up the neigh-borhood at five o'clock in the morning with an everlasting cock-a-doodle-doo; does not give an alarm of hawks every time a black cloud crosses the sun, but is still as much the lord of the chicken

He has not always been thus. Up to the time he was eight months old he was as noisy as any young rooster need be. Then he got his head caught in a barbed-wire fence in such a way as to mangle his neck and probably tear out the vocal cords. Losing the power to make sounds, he evidently forgot how to hear them. At least now, at the age of three years, he gives no evidence of hearing. But he makes his eyes answer for ears and voice, too. If any one wanted proof that he was really deaf and dumb, those eyes would be convinc-ing. There is nothing he does not see.

When the first glow of sunrise appears little or nothing to relieve them of their hurdens and that they have ing all the rest of the fowls in the hennery in his own original way. He walks around to each one, and kicks it off its perch. There is no resisting such an invitation to get up. It's much more effective than crowing. When he gets a challenge to fight he does not stop to announce what he can do. He goes and does it. And his battles are all victor-

> The most remarkable thing about this intelligent bird, however, is the fact that, though deaf, he can distinguish betwen an admonition to 'shoo" and a request to come to dinner. How he does it is a mystery, but it is believed that he tells by the motions of the lips and general attitude of the person who addresses him.

A course of instruction in a deaf-anddumb institute is all this rooster needs. to learn to talk with his spurs.

THE STRUGGLE FOR WEALTH.

Money a Potential Factor in Most of the World's Misery.

What is the most active factor of evil in this country at the present time? It is not drunkenness, nor licentiousness, nor infidelity. It is not bad politics, and nor infidelity. It is not bad politics, and it is not any thing that is disreputable and under the ban. It is simply the prevailing craze for wealth, and nothing else. From childhood to old age the average man thinks of nothing but moneyage man thinks of nothing Everybody is impatient to make a fortune in a hurry. Naturally people take what Sam Jones calls the 'nigh cuts." No man can love money and long retain a conscience and good principles. The struggle for wealth, says the Atlanta Constitution, is ruining and kill-ing people. During the panic the other a broker dropped dead in Wall street. Another broker in New York, a few days before, killed himself. It was all about a matter of money. Look at our defaulting Southern State Treasurers. Vincent, Tate, Burke and Heming way They are now disgraced, dead, in prison or in exile. Money was the cause. And there are worse things. Woolfolk, who died on the gallows a few days ago. murdered his whole family in the hope of getting money. And Birchall, just over the line in Canada. Think of his case. A clever, well-educated young fellow, of good family, with a pretty and devoted wife. For the sake of a few hundred dollars he decoyed a man into the swamp, and shot him down like a dog!

All for money. Then there was Selby Jones, of Kansas City, who committed with the approbation of the people. suicide the other day. He wanted to move in the best of society, and the result was a shortage in his accounts of seventy-five thousand dollars. detection stared him in the face he took a leap in the dark. Money again. Besides these bold fellows we have a few members and the Assembly to million sneaks and robbers who keep men, and resort to Shylock methods to fill their pockets. When one thinks of all these things the money devil begins to loom up a very potential factor. He is the cause of most of the crime and mis-

THE REDUCTION WORKS.

Judge Cheney rendered the following decision in the suit of Reno Smelting, Mining and Reduction Works, plaintiff, vs. C. C. Stevenson. et al., defendants:

To set aside the decree rendered in To set aside the decree rendered in this action September 17, 1890, and secure a new trial thereof, the defendants, on December 6, 1890, the time for said purpose having been by stipulation extended from October 25th to said date, filed an unsigned document purporting to be a statement on motion for new trial. On December 27 they noticed a motion for leave to amend said statement by having the amend said statement by having the name of their attorney subscribed there-to. No order or stipulation had been made when said motion to amend was noticed or presented, extending the time of the plaintiff amendments thereto. Upon the oral argument, and in the briefs, it is conceded that the notion should be granted if the Court has jurisdiction to allow any ments to said statement to be amendments to said statement to be made. The rule is well settled that when the time named in the statute or given by stipulation or order for making or amending a statement has expired, the Court is without jurisdic-tion to extend the time, or authorize the making or amendment of a state-if they do not, it may fairly be presumed, especially when they are not asking more, that they are satisfied with the statutory period. It follows, therefore, that the time for plaintiff to offer amondments to the statement. to offer amendments to the statement had expired before this motion was made, and the jurisdiction of the Court to grant this motion was thereby lost. It would hardly be contended that the Court has jurisdiction to allow the defendants to amend the steament and not jurisdice. amend the statement and not jurisdic tion to allow the plaintiff to do the same thing, and yet that would be the effect of allowing this motion. It is therefore denied. This motion might very properly have been denied on account of the condition of the papers presented and the unauthorized use of the files of this Court disclosed thereby. This point would not have been noticed when not urged by counsel were it not that a failure to do so might be considered an implied sanction of what has been done in this respect. In the statement presented, the findings and decree of this Court in this action—the original file papers-have been taken bodily and inserted between and attached to other documents and filed and served as a statement. It is unnecessary to inquire how or why this was done. It was wholly unauthorized and is without any pretense of justification. Papers and documents filed in a judicial proceeding, especially the solemn decrees and findings of the Court, are not only public property and public and assurance of private property and private rights. A LONG TIME AGO.

Reminiscent Of the Old Time

"Times ain't like they used to be," said a Eureka visitor at a down town hotel, a few hights since, from the depths of a bar room chair as he aimed at the cuspidor and settling back, wiped off his chin, and said, "The days were better in Pioche when s stage was robbed every few nights, and money was plenty, and the boys walked around town without much danger of getting hauled in." Every one moved up a little closer to the speaker as he continued and said, "I recollect one night of seeing Jack Harris come into the barber shop, wearing a pair of long legged cavalry boots, and as the side walks were good and no mud in the streets, some one asked no mud in the streets, some one asked him why he wore such boots. He said they were his rustlin' boots and when he had any rustlin' to do, he always went well heeled. Well, sure enough, that night the Hamilton stage was stopped, coming in, when about one mile out from Pioche and relieved of Fargo's box; the driver was ordered to turn around and go back. He obeyed orders until he thought it safe to return, and then he wheeled around and came into Pioche, arriving about and came into Floene, arriving about mid-night, and some hours behind time. At the Express office on the sidewalk were congregated about two hundred men waiting for letters which usually came that way. The express clerk was waiting and asked the driver, as he bore down on the brake and er, as he bore down on the brake and stopped, to pass out the express box. The driver, answered a little crest failen, that the boys down the road had it when he last saw it. The crowd was listening with great interest and at this announcement, they threw up their bats and gave three wild cheers and began to laugh. The road agents got about $1700.00 and there was a big effort made to catch 'em. The big effort made to eatch 'em. The next day Wells Fargo's agent sent fir Niconoro Rodregues who was generally supposed to know all about it. He was a polite little Mexican, and in a perfectly unruffled manner answered all questions without admitting any ing, "Gentlemen, you know me, and know my business, but I tell nothing. Catch me if you can." "Oh! were good old times for money," "Oh! tho the speaker as he moved up to the bar and laid down a half a dollar.

Johnny Tyler, whose death was an nounced at Spokane Falls on last Wednesday, was well known by the sporting fraternity of Nevada. The Daily Globe gives the following account of his last deal:

morning, and when in front of the Chicago clothing store, he began to stagger and said he could not walk. Mr. Ford assisted him to a seat on a large trunk standing in front of the store. This was his last resting place. A crowd began immediately to gather around the unfortunate man. Police officers George Mueller and Robert Wilson were on hand and kept the curious crowd at bay. They held the dying man in position, but it was only for a minute. He gasped a few times. The death color spread over his face and they stretched him out on the sidewalk, a corpse.

John Tyler was an unmarried man about 52 years of age. He has led the life of a gambler and has been a wanderer over the Pacific coast for many

The great quantity of cathartic pills, etc., which are taken by the people of this coun-try are productive of immensely more mis-culef than is generally suspected. True, the physic unloads the bowels, but its action tends to diminish the tone of the lutestines; to that, instead of removing costiveness, it aggravates it, leaving the bowels in a more torpid condition.

JENKS' DREAM.

Jenks had a queer dream the other night. He thought he saw a prize-fighters' ring, and in the middle of it stood a doughty little champion who met and deliberately knocked over, one by one, a score or more of big, burly-looking fellows, as they advanced to the attack. Giants as they were in size, the valiant pigmy proved more than a match for them. It was all so funny that Jenks woke up laughing. He accounts for the dream by the fact that he had just come to the conclusion, after trying nearly every big, drastic pill on the market, that Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, or tiny Sugar-coated Granules, easily "knock out" and beat all the big pills hollow! They are the original and only genuine Little Liver Pills.

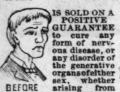

Beware of Imitations, which contain Poisonous Minerals. Always ask for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, which are Little Sugar-coated Pills, or Anti-bilious Granules.

Billious Hendache,
Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Billious Atizacks, and all derangements of the stomach size of dose. Smallest, Cheapest, Easiest

A DANGEROUS DOZE,

Result of a Nap Taken by a Telegraph Operator

In the fall of 1880 I was employed as a telegraph operator on a leading West-ern road, and located in the thriving little town of X. I was young at the business then, and did not possess the judgment or presence of mind that nine long years of railroad experience has since given me. But to my story. It was a cold, stormy night in the latter part of December. The snow, which been falling incessantly since morn ing, still continued when, lunch-basket in hand, I made my way down the quiet village street toward the depot.

Upon my arrival the day man ex-plained to me all the unfinished business, chatted pleasantly on various town topics for a little time, then donned his overcoat, and on bidding me good

"Charlie, old boy, this storm is rais-ing old Ned with railroading, the trains are all late, and unless it stops soon you will have a busy night of it. Keep your wits about you.

The night express No. 24, which was due at X at 2:20 a. m., was reported one hour and thirty minutes late, and east-bound passenger No. 19, flyer, as it was called among the railroad boys, was due at two a. m., and was reported one hour and ten minutes late. This being a single-track road, these two trains usually met and passed at Coal Switch, a small station

As the clock struck the hour of midnight, and my sleepiness increased, I foolishly resolved to take a short nap before train time, thinking I could easily rouse myself when occasion called, for many had been the night that I had stretched myself full length on the office desk with my coat for a pillow and dozed the long hours away, never failing to respond when my sounder called

But I was uncommonly tired that night, and I slept on much longer than I intended. When I woke "A Y" (that stood for the dispatcher's office) was calling me. I rubbed my eyes and, still half asleep, answered him with "I I-X." He then asked me for No. 19. I thought one brief second, reasoned that if it had passed my station the noise would surely have waked me, then answered "N. Y." which to him meant,

He then called Brockton, the second his prompt reply "I I," "B" sent the following order addressed to the operator at X and to No. 27 at Brockton. It read: "No. 27 will run to X regardless of No. 19. Operator at X will hold No 19 until No. 27 arrives."

My readers will eadily understand that the order was given to help 27 along, and upon the strength of my reporting No. 19 as not having passed my station. Not more than ten minutes after the order was given I heard Brockton send in the signatures of the conductor and engineer of No. 27, heard the order corrected and knew that they had left Brockton and no night office be-

Then for the first time I commenced seriously to consider the matter; and one after another in quick success these questions arose: Why don't 19 come? Had No. 19 passed, and if so, what would be the result? My head was spinning like a top.

To ease my mind, and, perhaps because I did not know what else to do, I went out and examined the rails. The storm had ceased and here and there a twinkling star could be seen. The moon was trying to shine from beneath great bank of wavy clouds, and by its dim light I could see them and they told the story but too well. The rails were clean from snow, and as it had been snowing when I lay down to rest I knew that No. 19 had passed while I carelessly slept.

My brain seemed on fire. I staggered back into the office. The dispatcher back into the office. The dispatcher was again calling me.

With trembling hand I grasped the key and answered him. Again his former question was asked: "Has No. 19 arrived?" What should I say? Fear advised me to again reply "N Y" and in the time that would elapse before they could arrest me make good my escape. Duty whispered: "Be a man." I heeded it and told him all. He had no time to chide me even had he desired. It was a chide me even had he desired. It was a time for action then. I heard him send this message to the superintendent's of-

"No. 19 and No. 97 will meet in a collision near Coal Switch. Send wrecking crew and physicians at once."

I paced the office like a madman, and

I paced the office like a madman, and prayed that God would in his mercy spare those poor helpless passengers; that He would not stain my hands with their blood; yet all the time knowing how impossible such a thing would be. The minutes seemed hours. Twenty of them passed, then thirty, feety, and still no news from the

I seized xay hat and started for the door; there a stood undecided, when my practised ear hand Brockton calling the hope. It said; "No. 27 is here and -" I heard no more, but fell swooning to

The terrible strain had been too much for me, I don't know how long I lay thus; when I came to, I found strang faces about me, heard the sound of escaping steam and there before the station stood No. 19. How did it happen, you ask?

Well, I will tell you. No. 19 had passed X while I slept. No. 27 had signed its orders at Brockton and proceeded on its way.

Now comes the strange part of this strange tale, showing how God in His infinite goodness can and does step in when man is powerless and in despair. Near Coal Switch is a deep cut, where the road runs through a small spur of Bearpaw mountain. Into this cut, it seems, the snow had blown all that night from the bank above until the track was one huge drift.

On rushed No. 27. On, on rushed No. 19 until-well-until this blessed snowbank was reached. Then they halted scarcely four hundred feet apart. No. 27 returned to B for help, and No. 19, being short of water, backed to X, where they found me lying where I fell.

In some respects I have never recovered from that night's experience. Of course I was called up to interview the superintendent. I told him all like a man, then bade him good-day, and went out into the world to commence all over

Through the official's kindness the newspapers never learned of my crim inal carelessness or the averted catastrophe, for all of which I was very thankful. I soon secured a new posi tion in the East, where I have remained ever since. That night's work, however, carried with it a lesson to which I, perhaps, owe my present success.—C. M. Dennison, in Yankee Blade.

THE MONKEY DRUMMER. An African Story Accredited to Emir Pasha.

Emin Pasha, the story of whose rescue from Central Africa is well known to the world, is an enthusiastic student of natural history, and had made a collection at his headquarters on the Upper Nile, which he was compelled to

One of the objects of his interest in the equatorial province was a species of chimpanzee, and Mr. Stanley tells some remarkable stories regarding Emin's observations.

According to Stanley's account, the equatorial chimpanzee is not greatly the inferior in intelligence of some of the human beings found there.

The forest of Msongwa is infested by a tribe of chimpanzees of great stature, who make almost nightly raids on the villages and little plantations of the Mswa natives, carrying away their bananas and other fruits. There is nothing very remarkable about this fact, since many kinds of animals make pillaging forays upon the habitations of men; but the surprising part of Emin's narrative is the statement that in these thieving raids the chimpanzees make use of lighted torches to hunt out the

"If I had not myself been a witness of this spectacle," Mr. Stanley reports Emin as saying, "nothing would ever have made me believe that any race of monkeys possessed the art of making

On one occasion, Emin says, a chimpanzee of this intelligent tribe stole a drum from the huts of his Egyptian troops and made off with it, beating it as he ran. The monkey took the drum to the headquarters of his own "people," who were evidently much charmed with it, for the Egyptian soldiers often heard the monkeys beating it vigorously but irregularly. Sometimes in the middle of the night some sleepless chimpanzee would get up and go to beating the

Just what the other chimpanzees thought of this midnight musical performance will never be known positively. But from the fact that no sound of battle and slaughter among the intelligent chimpanzees ever followed, the Egyptians were forced to conclude that they liked it.—N. Y. Sunday Journal.

The newest walking-stick for men is one that bears the somewhat suggestive title of the "clubman's stick." It has a round head and looks like anybody's cane, but its peculiarity appears when its head is unscrewed, as it can be, disclosing a tiny electric light in a glass bulb. The fitness of the title appears at once, says the New York Sun. No more sleight-of-hand performances with the key-hole when the busy clubman gets home late and tired. No more unhappy and dis-turbing stumbling through dark halls and into unlighted apartments. When the kindly office of the stick as an aid to walking has been fulfilled, the stick literally becomes a light unto his feet and a lamp unto his path.

The Life of Trees. Recent information gathered by the the German Forestry Commission assigns to the pine tree 500 and 700 years as the maximum, 425 years to the silver fir, 275 years to the larch, 245 years to the red beech, 210 to the aspen, 200 to the birch, 170 to the ash, 145 to the alder and 180 to the elm. The heart of the oak begins to rot at about the age 300 years. The holly oak alone escapes this law, it is said, and there is a specimen of this aged 410 years in existence near Aschaffenburg in Germany.—Chi cago Times.
